A non-profit corporation supporting the Arboretum of Los Angeles the beginning of time. How could he possibly explain the autumn mystery of trees shedding leaves, or flowers and grasses withering, when in warmer weather all were reborn? For the ancients, this curious cycle of dormancy and growth had no scientific basis, so human imagination offered answers instead. In some cultures, nymphs and dryads animated trees and flowers with guardian spirits. Plants seemed to have magical powers that could give relief from misfortune or illness, control fate, and perhaps even guarantee peace with the gods.

Observing that the sunflower moves as if to track the sun across the sky, ancient sun worshippers in Peru venerated the sunflower as the earthly embodiment of the sun. The morning glory blossoms' habit of opening only at daybreak inspired the Japanese to call them "jewels of heaven" because their beauty lured the sun goddess back into the sky at dawn. Every culture imbued its native flora with myth and magic.

To salute this tradition, the Arboretum has planned a variety of interesting opportunities for the fall months which will highlight aspects of plant legends and lore. The ROSE, honored by Aphrodite as the symbol of love, will be the special topic of a lecture in the newly refurbished Rose Garden. Did you know that a flower sent as a gift in early times conveyed a distinct message without the assistance of language? A rose, for example, told the recipient, "May you be pleased, and your sorrows mine." A jonquil, however, changed the emphasis to, "Have pity on my passion."

The glorious SUNFLOWER is a favorite of noted author Sharon Lovejoy, who comes to the Arboretum to speak about her own sense of wonder and involvement with the magical plant kingdom. To tie the plant world and its legends to Halloween, a fascinating talk on MARIGOLDS and Day of the Dead ceremonies from ancient to modern Mexico, is a must. At the Arboretum this Fall we will be busy exploring the plant world as our ancestors did.

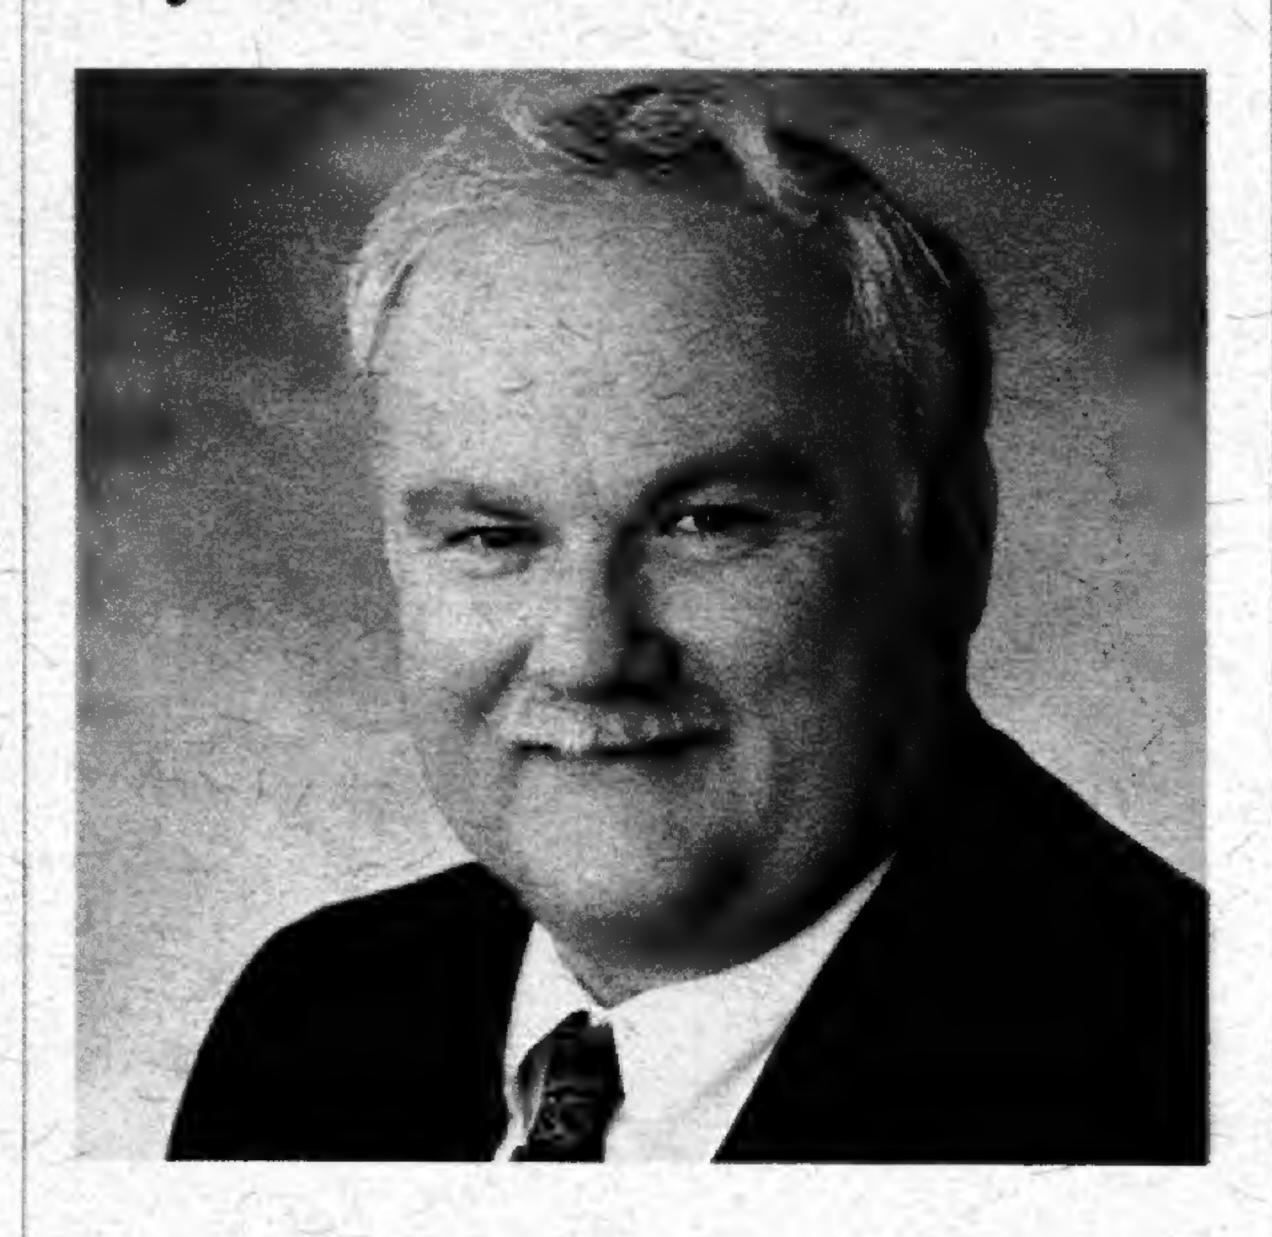

Every garden area offers plant stories galore. In the Herb Garden, faithfully groomed by volunteers, enjoy the ROSEMARY for more than its culinary punch. Students of ancient Greece adorned their hair with rosemary sprigs while they studied, since it was believed to strengthen memory. In later times, brides wore rosemary to show they would always remember their families. YAR-ROW, or Achillea, in the Rose Garden and elsewhere on the grounds, takes its genus name from Homer's Iliad. His hero Achilles was said to have given yarrow to his soldiers to stanch the blood from their wounds. The Navajo considered it their panacea.

Shakespeare infused his work with references to the plant world as it was understood in his time. Later, during the time of English writer Alexander Pope, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu believed no flower was without a sentimental meaning ... that it was possible to send messages of passion, friendship, or civility, and even quarrel or reproach, "without inking the fingers."

Flower power and plant lore are special topics of the Arboretum this fall, from the Garden itself, to lectures, special displays in the library, and new books in the Gift Shop. Discover for yourself more about the lore and legend of our magical plant kingdom.

Legend, Lore and More: The World of Plants from A to Z, is an information color slide presentation presented by the Arboretum volunteer speakers bureau. Call 818-821-3207 and reserve a speaker for your group.

Mysterious Plant

If you had the opportunity to visit the Arboretum this summer, you may have noticed a plant called Azolla growing on the lake. The common name of this plant is the Mosquito Fern. It is called the Mosquito Fern because it covers water so densely, mosquitoes are unable to penetrate the surface and therefore discourages their reproduction.

Azolla grows best when provided with adequate light, warm temperatures, organic matter and still water. It is native to South America but has been spread by aquatic birds and water currents.

When grown in strong sunlight, the plants are red in color. If grown in the shade, they are green. The Azolla floats on the water and when growing conditions are excellent, can cover a lake such as ours in a few weeks, thus becoming a noxious weed.

In the British Isles, it is considered a very desirable plant for ponds. They recommend that over the Winter, it be placed inside or in a frost-free area. The weather is not warm enough in the British Isles for the Azolla to become a noxious weed.

To control the spreading of the plant and to eliminate it from our lake we have installed an aerator and have reduced the organic matter in the lake. This will reduce the desirable growing conditions that the Azolla requires.

Not only was this a learning experience for our staff on how to control the weed, it is an example of the ever-changing appearance of the Arboretum.

FROM THE FOUNDATION

Embrace Fall

Botanic gardens are cultural assets much in the same way museums are — Institutions committed to preserving what has been entrusted to them. The Arboretum is no exception and should be thought of as a museum of living plant collections from around the world.

The Arboretum is also a public garden. Therefore, we believe that the guardianship of the plants and historic buildings includes a responsibility to companion exhibits with information. It is an essential part of our service to the public. The garden and its many features come alive when interpreted by trained docents, tram drivers and descriptive handouts.

To "animate" the story of the plants and historic structures, the program department of the Foundation in cooperation with Arboretum staff specialists have developed a variety of learning opportunities that feature particular parts of the garden and particular topics of horticultural interest. The successful Tour and Taste evenings this past summer resulted from a joint effort. The theme for the Fall months, Plant, Lore, Legend and More also resulted from a collaborative discussion. Lectures, workshops and even Gift Shop merchandise has been selected around this intriguing theme. We hope what is being presented will interest you and will lure you onto the grounds long enough to allow for a stroll through the beautiful changes that Autumn creates.

The educational component at the Arboretum gives it a voice to communicate something unique about the plant world and our own local history. We are dedicated to strengthen all informational aspects, from interpretive signage to greater awareness of our Library and more classes and activities for all ages. As members of the Foundation, you contribute to our ability to offer educational service through your attendance and your membership support. Lectures without a fee are funded from membership dollars. The costs of many volunteer services, including the docent tours of thousands of school children annually, are funded in part through membership revenues.

Your membership helps the Foundation in its work to develop and enhance the many ways in which to make the garden as informative as it is lovely. We appreciate your support immensely and I encourage you to feel proud of what your support represents.

WITH IRMA DIAZ... Information Services

"Thank you for calling THE ARBO-RETUM of Los Angeles County. This is Irma, how may I help you?"

As receptionist and switchboard operator, Irma Diaz is the first voice heard when calls come into the Arboretum for information or service. She also greets visitors in the reception area, gives information on hours, directs visitors to their appointments or classes and any other Arboretum service.

This is the core of her job, and according to her peers, she does it superbly!

Although the job she performs may seem ordinary, Irma makes it extraordinary because of the way she approaches her work.

According to her co—workers, she is unfailingly efficient, pleasant and courteous.

Growing up in a family where only
Spanish was spoken, Irma quickly learned English in kindergarten. Her bilingual skills make her especially valuable in serving the Arboretum's large Hispanic audience.

A resident of California since she was eight, Irma was graduated from Rosemead High School in 1969. Prior to joining the Arboretum in 1985, Irma worked for Sbicca of California for 12 years and Pacific Bell as a clerk for five.

When she is not at the Arboretum, Irma devotes her free time to activities focusing on her son and orthopedically handicapped daughter.

For seven years as a coordinator of the Religious Education Program for Epiphany Parish in South El Monte, Irma prepared and arranged activities for 250 children ranging from kindergarten through fifth grade. In September, Irma will continue to serve her parish as a fourth grade catechism teacher.

Irma's cheerful demeanor is a constant contribution to employee morale. Her flexible "can do" attitude epitomizes the kind of employee who is essential to Los Angeles County, especially when so many aspects of public service are changing.

WITH EILEEN HUBBARD... President of Las Voluntarias Y Los Ayudantes

Eileen Hubbard, involved in Arcadia civic affairs for more than four decades, has been elected to a second year as President of Las Voluntarias Y Los Ayudantes at the Arboretum.

Eileen has been a volunteer at THE ARBORETUM of Los Angeles County for eight years, rounding out her

Irma Diaz

Eileen Hubbard
many other Arcadia civic involvements.

Most recently, she was honored as "Most Valuable Member" of the Assistance League of Arcadia. A member of Arcadia. A member

Mark Beall
of the League for 21 years, she is a past president and current officer.

Eileen has been active in the Arcadia Junior Women's Club, the Arcadiannes, the Arcadia Methodist Hospital Auxiliary, and has been affiliated with the Arcadia Beautiful Commission for eight years.

A native Californian, Eileen and husband Vern, have lived in their present home in Arcadia for 43 years. They are parents of four children, all residing nearby, grandparents of ten and great—grandparents of four.

More honors, however, will come to the Hubbards this coming December.

They will be celebrating their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

WITH MARK BEALL... Senior Gardener

When you next visit the Arboretum, admire the plants and flowers at the entrance and throughout the Home Demonstration Garden. It's the work of Mark Beall, new Senior Gardener for the Arboretum.

His dedicated work symbolizes the stock market's loss and the Arboretum's gain.

Since high school, Mark has had an interest in gardening. His neighbor, according to Mark, had "the biggest green thumb" he had ever seen. He was impressed with how she could turn her yard into a spectacular display each year.

Mark spent many afternoons talking with her about plants and flowers. In fact, Mark recalls how they would consider the possibility of opening a nursery together.

The seeds were sown.

With gardening as a hobby, Mark was graduated with a degree in Business from Towson State University in Maryland in 1983. Moving to Los Angeles after graduation, Mark intended to become a stockbroker.

So how did he end up as Senior Gardener at the Arboretum?

After moving to California and becoming disillusioned with the world of finance, Mark learned about a landscape program through the UCLA Extension Program. He took classes and worked in the Landscape Architecture office.

In 1991, Mark passed the exam to become a licensed landscape architect.

Since then he has worked on the landscape remodel of the Plaza in West Covina and supervised the landscape installation of Mayor Riordan's Brentwood home and a Sheik's palace in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia.

Mark, however, wanted the opportunity to direct a garden's development over a period of time. As Senior Gardener funded by the California Arboretum Foundation, he is able to design and install a garden and guide it to full growth and potential.

Horticultural interns are "Lucky"

Horticultural students, whose Arboretum study is funded by the California Arboretum Foundation, come eagerly to the Arboretum each summer for a 10-week internship under the direction of Tim Lindsay, Assistant Superintendent of the Arboretum.

Interns include Natasha Arnoldi, graduate of Universite de Paris; Kellie Berger, junior at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo; Kathleen Meany, graduate of University of Michigan; Annalisa Miller, master's student at Cal Poly Pomona; William Morrison, graduate from U.S.C. and Aaron Wohler, graduate of New Mexico State University.

Majoring in landscape design, horticulture, entomology, botany, forestry and related areas, the extraordinary level of education and knowledge of Tim Lindsay's students would certainly strike "Lucky" Baldwin as impressive. "Lucky" was, no doubt, the first horticulturist to approach the site, now known as The Arboretum.

On location at the Arboretum

Hey, Movie Buffs! Did you know that besides providing hours of horticultural entertainment, the Arboretum is a sometime movie set?

Those who have seen the recent movie

Dave, starring Sigourney Weaver and Kevin

Klein, might recognize the Bauer Pool area at the Arboretum. During production construction crews spent eight weeks at the Arboretum building a replica of the White House Truman Balcony near the pool.

Dave was only one of nine productions at the Arboretum last year. Others included Murder She Wrote with Angela Lansbury; Hart to Hart with Robert Wagner and Stephanie Powers; Unsolved
Mysteries with Robert Stack; Burke's
Law with Gene Barry and Peter Barton;
The Next Karate Kid; Hit Radio; The
First Gentlemen; and at your movie theatres now, North, directed by Rob Reiner.

Keep looking for your favorite Arboretum spot on the big and small screens.

Happy movie making!!!!

Last year, the California Arboretum Foundation received more than $100,000 for the use of the Arboretum grounds.

A victory garden!

What a year to review! Never a dull moment.

Launched on the challenge of a single headline, the Arboretum's staff and many supporters rallied to stimulate a year of considerable accomplishment.

The garden's appearance has never been better. The new pond and refurbished Rose Garden are delighting visitors and horticulturists alike.

Staff enhancement has impacted the garden both visually and educationally. Foundation and memorial giving support has furthered special projects at the same time attendance to special lectures and workshops has increased.

Gardening is America's #1 favorite past time,
Home gardeners are eager to learn about the plant world and its particular requirements in our unique climate. School science curriculums are including ecology and environmental studies, making the Arboretum an ideal outdoor classroom for teachers and students. The Forest area was utilized by high schoolers from the Arcadia School District, and the Roots and Shoots program involved elementary age youngsters.

The Arboretum is a public resource even at times of natural disaster. The fires last October resulted in many phone inquiries about fire retardant plant materials as residents set out to replant their torched hillsides and gardens.

Concern about the arrival of killer bees prompted the scheduling of our Arboretum experts to talk on the subject.

The adoption of the Master Plan has created a road map to take the Arboretum into the 21st century as a world class Facility.

Executive Director

JULY, 1993, as the County Board of Supervisors grappled with difficult budget decisions, one Supervisor is quoted as suggesting that the Arboretum might need to be closed. California Arboretum Foundation (CAF) membership support, phone calls, letters to several newspaper > editors and even radio talk shows carries the cry from the community to keep the Arboretum open.

AUGUST, the CAF fills the position of Program Manager to further its commitment to provide educational support.

SEPTEMBER, the County department of Parks and Recreation increases general adult admission from $3 to $5. An energetic CAF

Trustee undertakes the assignment to develop directional signage for the Arboretum. A Master Plan Development committee representing both staff and volunteers is created to research and write a long range plan for Arboretum operations and program.

A new look in the Victorian Rose Garden

"I Have a Dream", children dig in at Roots and Shoots

OCTOBER, the CAF funds a position of work crew supervisor to fill in a County vacancy. Work on the Rose Garden renovations begins, and is a joint endeavor between Fanatic Gardeners, CAF and County staff.

NOVEMBER, the CAF agrees with Parks and Recreation to fund jointly the $52,000 new pond feature in the Forest area. A new Parks and Recreation agency, headed by John Weber, is. moved into offices in the Research building, the administration building and the Visitors Center.

DECEMBER, the Omamental Horticulturist and Curator of the Herbarium leave the Arboretum.

JANUARY, 1994, the Northridge earthquake causes a major crack in the Queen Anne Cottage. The Santa Anita Foundation completes its $50,000 five-year pledge.

The CAF is named beneficiary of both the Barbara C. Davis estate and the Alice Slater estate.

Roots and Shoots, a new hands-on gardening class for 3rd and 4th graders, opens as a pilot program, completely funded by private donations.

The Jameson series is sold out, with more than 250 in attendance.

FEBRUARY, a memorial gift is received to restore and paint all the wood features in the Victorian Rose Garden.

MARCH, the Foundation creates and funds a new Senior Gardener position that focuses on the entrance area, the demonstration gardens and Peacock Cafe area.

APRIL, a surprise hail storm devastates many plants selected for the Baldwin Bonanza Plant Sale. In spite of this setback the annual Baldwin Bonanza Auction Party and Plant Sale nets over $85,000.

MAY, the Rose Garden renovation is completed. and construction of the pond feature is finished.

JUNE, the CAF's annual meeting has the highest attendance ever; eight new Trustees are approved.

New Foundation Board Members appointed

Eight new members joined the Board of Trustees of the California Arboretum Foundation (CAF) effective July 1.

With interests and professional skills that range from corporate organizational planning and implementation to financial expertise to journalism and photography, as well as having a strong involvement in education and environmental issues, all new board members bring a fresh approach and high energy to the CAF. A warm welcome to our new board members, Pasadena residents Esme Gibson, Polly Goodan, Alexander Mallace, Susan Seidel and Consuelo Castro, S. H. Wen and Jesse Vanlandingham of Arcadia and Dennis Poulsen of Hacienda Heights.

California Arboretum Foundation "Wish List"

Donors to the California Arboretum

Foundation (CAF) have a choice to specify how they wish their donations to be used.

However, when a donor does not designate how they wish their donation to be used, the funds are put into a operating account which is used to fund programs, the summer interns and grounds maintenance. However, to enhance Foundation operations, certain equipment is wanted. The following is an excerpt from the CAF office "Wish List":

- · A new answering machine
- Two Polaroid cameras
- A Portable Phone
- A Video Camera
- Walkie Talkies
- Interesting and unique antique wood furnishings to display items in the Gift Shop. A china hutch and an old stove are at the top of the furnishings list.

Forty minutes is all it takes ...

Each slide show and accompanying live narration presented by The Arboretum volunteer speakers bureau takes about forty minutes. Titles include "Meet the Arboretum", a colorful pictorial overview of the 127 acre garden, "The Baldwin Ranch", an illustrated account of the lively history of the property which is now the Arboretum and "Legend, Lore and More: The World of Plants from A to Z."

Arboretum presentations are free though "thank you" contributions to the California Arboretum Foundation are certainly welcome. Call 818–821–3207 to arrange for a presentation to your organization.

Ave.

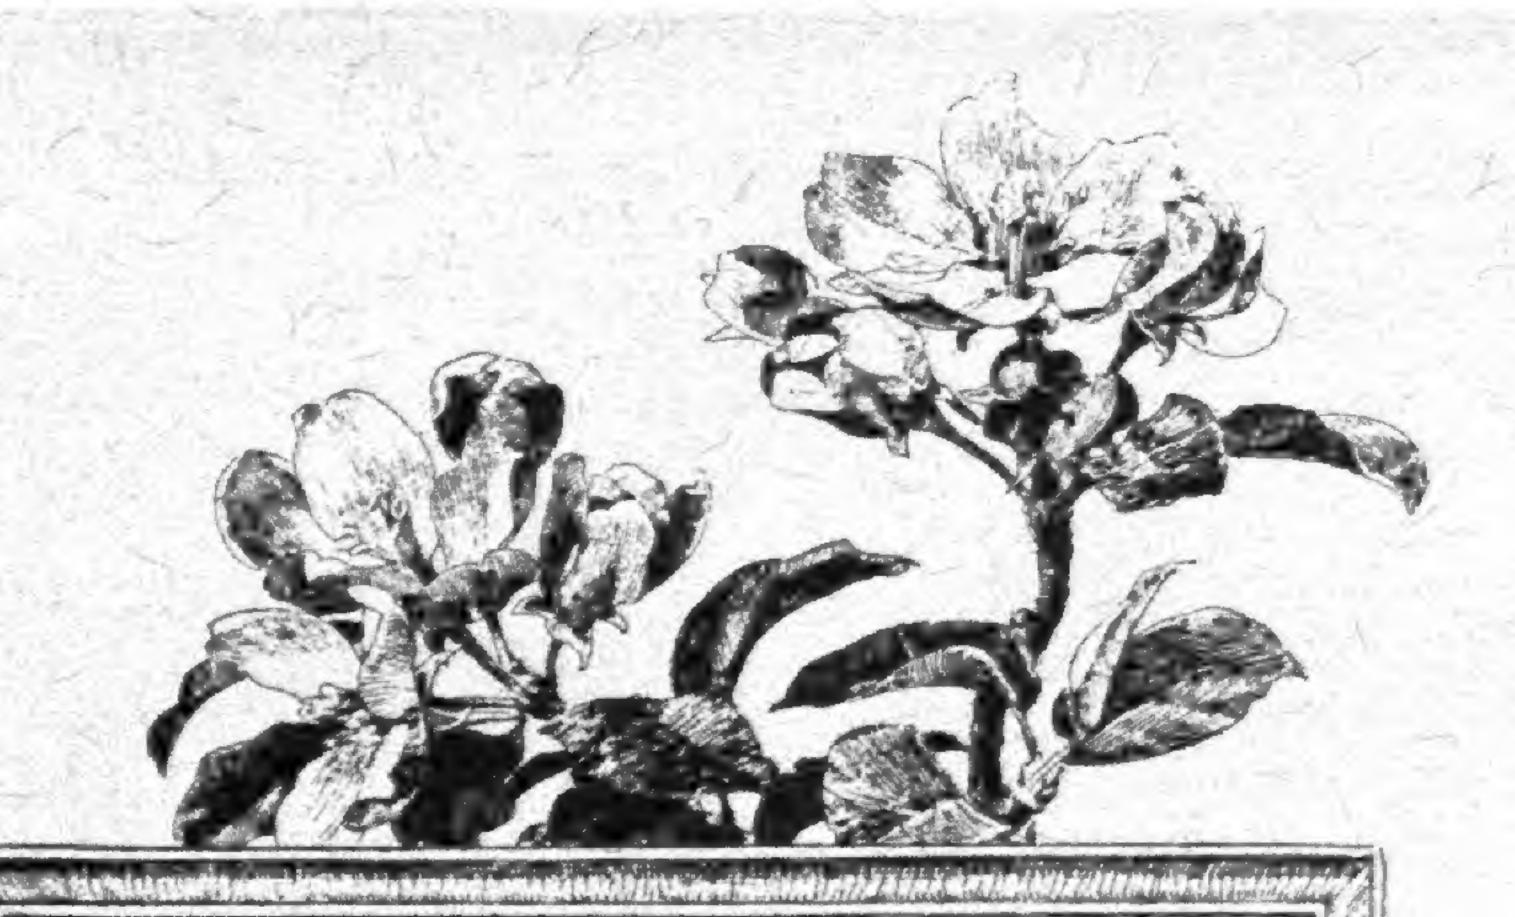

More is the pity that Scabiosa Lucida has fallen from the high peak of favor it once had. All Scabiosa make excellent cut flowers. The blooms somewhat resemble a pin cushion which suits Mrs. Peacock. But the shape may be why it fell from favor. Not all of us collect pin cushions.

- If in August seed catalogs overflowed the mailbox and made drifts at your door, the orders placed will be their own reward. Provided that part of the grand plan includes a planting session. Pansies on top, of course, for instant gratification. Mrs. Peacock just can't stand the sight of all that bare dirt. A mixture of alyssum, violas and pansies are choice as they stay low and the bulbs grow through easily.
- The newest walking shoe has these great spikes on the sole for aerating the lawn. Just tromp tromp tromp and the job is done. Trouble is there has to be lawn to walk on. Lawn alone is a vexing item. It may be time for Burmuda ...the lawn, not the islands... just some overseeding and we all go dormant together.
- There were formal gardens and carpets of wild violets when "Lucky" Baldwin had charge of these grounds. Mrs.

 Peacock remembers it well. "Lucky",

- raconteur that he was, claimed that one of the willows he planted was a descendant of a cutting from a tree at Napoleon's tomb...the cutting having been presented to "Lucky" when he was in Europe. I never did meet Napoleon. Can't verify that.
- Pumpkins love hot weather and the steer manure provided by your loving hands. If the pumpkins in your patch also need your help in transferring pollen, just remove an opened male flower early early in the morning and dab the yellow dust from the central pollen structure onto the structure in the middle of a freshly opened female flower. (Male flowers develop on the plain stems.) Normally bees do all of this, which means you can sleep in. Mrs. Peacock hopes you saved your last newsletter; it tells you where to order bees if you need them.
